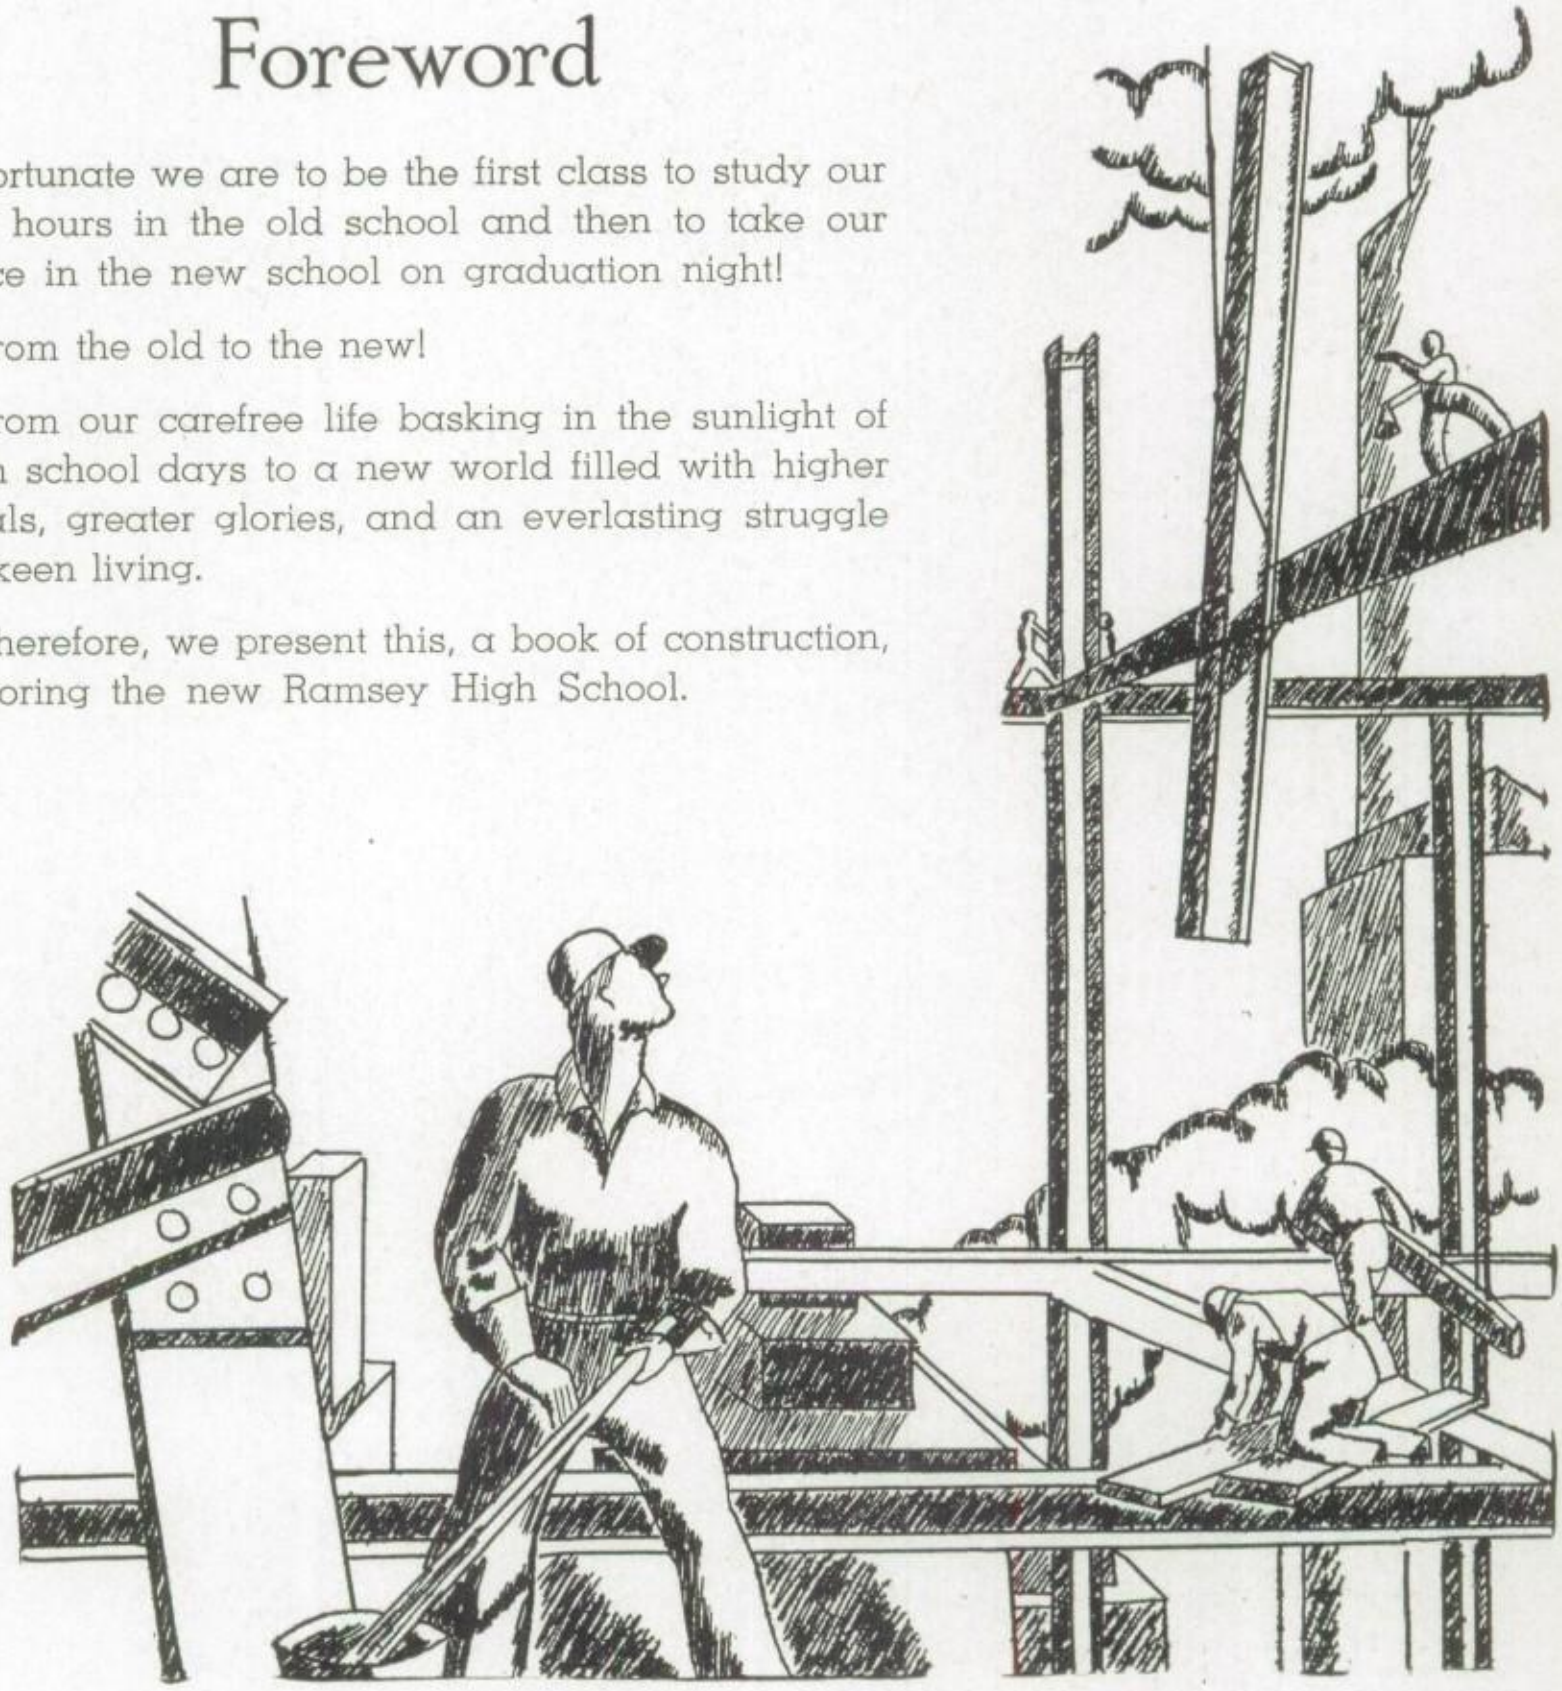
Foreword

Fortunate we are to be the first class to study our last hours in the old school and then to take our place in the new school on graduation night!

From the old to the new!

From our carefree life basking in the sunlight of high school days to a new world filled with higher ideals, greater glories, and an everlasting struggle for keen living.

Therefore, we present this, a book of construction, honoring the new Ramsey High School.



Dedication

In order that we might express our appreciation for all she has done to make our Senior year a success, we the seniors of nineteen thirty-seven, dedicate this our class annual to Miss Grace E. Miller, a sincere friend and a fine instructress.

A Message to the Class of '37

Seniors, we are glad to have had you with us. We are sorry to have you go.

All life is growth and progress. You came to us as children, and you leave us as young men and women. Now it is time for you to go forth into the larger world that more or less eagerly awaits you.

We hope that your years in Ramsey High School have been pleasantly and wisely spent; that you have formed friendships and associations that will go with you through life; and that in later years you can cherish pleasant memories of your old high school.

It will be your honor and distinction to help dedicate by your Commencement, the new High School. True it is that your high school life has been spent in the old building, but it is also true that had your class, and others which preceded, not proved worthy, our citizens would not have so generously provided the splendid new high school for those who shall follow us.

You have been a fine class. We are proud of you and of what you have accomplished. May you realize that any trials and disappointments that have occurred during your stay with us are part of the discipline of life. They should serve to prepare you for the larger life that now awaits you. In later years you will look back upon them with a deeper understanding of it all.

For the Faculty and for myself I wish you all happiness and success. May you never lose the high ideals of youth. May you be generous in victory and brave in sorrow and adversity. We shall always rejoice in your success and grieve with you when disappointments come upon you.

Farewell and God speed. We have worked together.

WESLEY D. TISDALE.

Class History

On that long-remembered day in September 1933, we, the seniors of today, entered the portals of Ramsey High School as unsuspecting freshmen. Reassured by Mr. Tisdale's customary words of welcome to the newest group of "lowly freshmen," we were filled with the determination to surpass the standards set by other classes.

While our freshmen year was comparatively uneventful, our boys had exceptionally fine baseball and basketball teams, excelling even under stiff competition.

Rising to become sophomores, we gained much confidence in ourselves. We presented a fine "Amateur Nite" program in assembly, giving many members of our class the opportunity of exploiting their many varied talents.

When at last we were distinguished juniors and could number ourselves among the ranks of upper classmen, we became very energetic and decided to give the public the benefit of our many talents. We strengthened our treasury considerably by selling Christmas Cards to our many friends and by giving a benefit movie. Encouraged by this, we began our activities by holding the annual dance in our gymnasium. Following this, we presented Junior Novelty Nite before a large and appreciative audience. It without doubt far surpassed any other given.

The crown of our activities, the ever-popular prom, was held, as usual, in the gym where with light hearts we danced our cares away to the rhythm of a popular orchestra. We ended our year successfully with the annual picnic to Lake Hopatcong.

At last the highest peak of our school career has been reached and we have become a mighty senior class. Faced with the realization that our treasury needed reimbursing, "Growing Pains," a comedy in three acts, which proved both a financial and dramatic success, was presented. As a result of the success of this play, we are pleased to present this year's "Nugget," the climax of our efforts.

March 12, 13, 1937
Directed by Miss Grace Miller
Staged by Mr. James Patrick

"Growing Pains" expresses the dilemma of the McIntyres, who see their boy and girl tossed in the cataracts of adolescence and can help little further than give directions for the turbulent course from a distance, advices which egocentric youth always rejects.

Class Will

We, the senior class of Ramsey High School, on this fourteenth day of June, in the year of Our Lord, nineteen hundred and thirty-seven, being of sound mind, memory and understanding, do make and publish this our last will and testament in the manner following:

FIRST: To Mr. Tisdale, we leave our sincere thanks for all of the deep understanding he has shown in guiding us.

SECOND: To Mr. Moore, we leave our deepest gratitude for all the help he has given us throughout our high school years and our best wishes for the future.

THIRD: To Mr. Smith, we leave our best wishes for the future as principal of the Ramsey Grammar School.

FOURTH: To a few of our Teachers, we leave individually some things that we think they may need.

To Miss Cunningham, our school nurse, we leave a can of flit to keep pests out of her room.

To Miss Mallin, we leave our hopes that next year she has a Solid and Trig. class as nice as this year's was.

To Mr. Schanz, we leave a pair of roller skates so that he can catch more quickly the ones that cut classes.

To Mr. Mitchell, we leave a bell to ring. It must get tiresome to always ring that horseshoe stake.

To Miss Jay, we leave a compass, we are afraid she might get lost in the new library.

FIFTH: To the Juniors, we leave the inspiration of success that we have used in all of our senior activities.

SIXTH: To all of the underclassmen, we leave our hopes that you have as much fun and enjoyment in the new high school as we have had in the old one.

SEVENTH: The Senior Class members leave individually certain gifts to be used as stated in the following:

Leroy Quick leaves his name to the track team.

Melvin Penewell leaves his horse shoe pitching ability to Phil Engle—he can use it.

Jean Goodman leaves Johnny Sima flat.

Kenneth Knight leaves his motorcycle to the junk man.

Loretta Harvey leaves for Hollywood.

Edward Zinsmeister leaves his book on "How I Became an Actor" to Bob Wells.

Eileen North leaves her line to Dot Murray, on which to catch another poor fish.

Harold Schultz leaves his voice to the cheer leaders.

Larry Curran leaves to join the sit-down strikers.

Danny Phair leaves to join the circus as the strong man.

Tommy Murray leaves his "Daily News" to Mr. Schanz.

Norma Jones leaves that smile to be photographed by Pepsodent.

Doug Fogal leaves his eyelashes to "Mousie" Brennan to be auctioned off to the junior girls.

Bill Irwin leaves to assist Einstein.

"Hawk" Mutti leaves his humor to any one who can appreciate it.

Tommy Murphy leaves to be a second Ziegfield.

Walter Krzymowski leaves his ability to study to "Artie" Ward.

EIGHTH: Last but by no means least the senior class leaves Ramsey High School never to forget our Alma Mater or anything connected with it.

In witness whereof this document Signed, Sealed, Published, and Declared is our last Will and Testament.

VIRGINIA SLEIGHT.

Class Poem

Sometime in the future when we are tired and dull,
Memory will lift its curtain and take us into the past.

Our minds will picture for us each glorious day we spent,
The four years in Ramsey High School, the games and plays to which we went.

We'll see baseballs winging thru the sky, footballs skimming high and falling,
Basketballs shot neatly upward, cheering, shouting, singing, blended.

We pay tribute to the old school and the many joys we knew,
We will cherish every memory tho we're going to the new.

GENEVIEVE WHITLOCK.

Junior Report

The Juniors of the class of 1938 enjoyed a most successful year. The officers elected were as follows: Edward Eastland, president; Eugene Brennan, vice president; Rosemary Sullivan, secretary and Harry Schneider, treasurer.

Following the established course for Juniors their first event of the year was the sale of Christmas cards.

Another money-maker was the Junior Card Party and Dance, November 14, 1937.

Disregarding precedent the Juniors decided upon two nights for their main activity, Junior Novelty Nite.

Last but not least, was the Junior Promenade. In this way a most profitable Junior year was ended.

COACHES

CAPTAINS

Football

Coach ..... Paul D. O'Connor

Co-captains ..... Murphy and Lockwood

Manager ..... William Webersinn

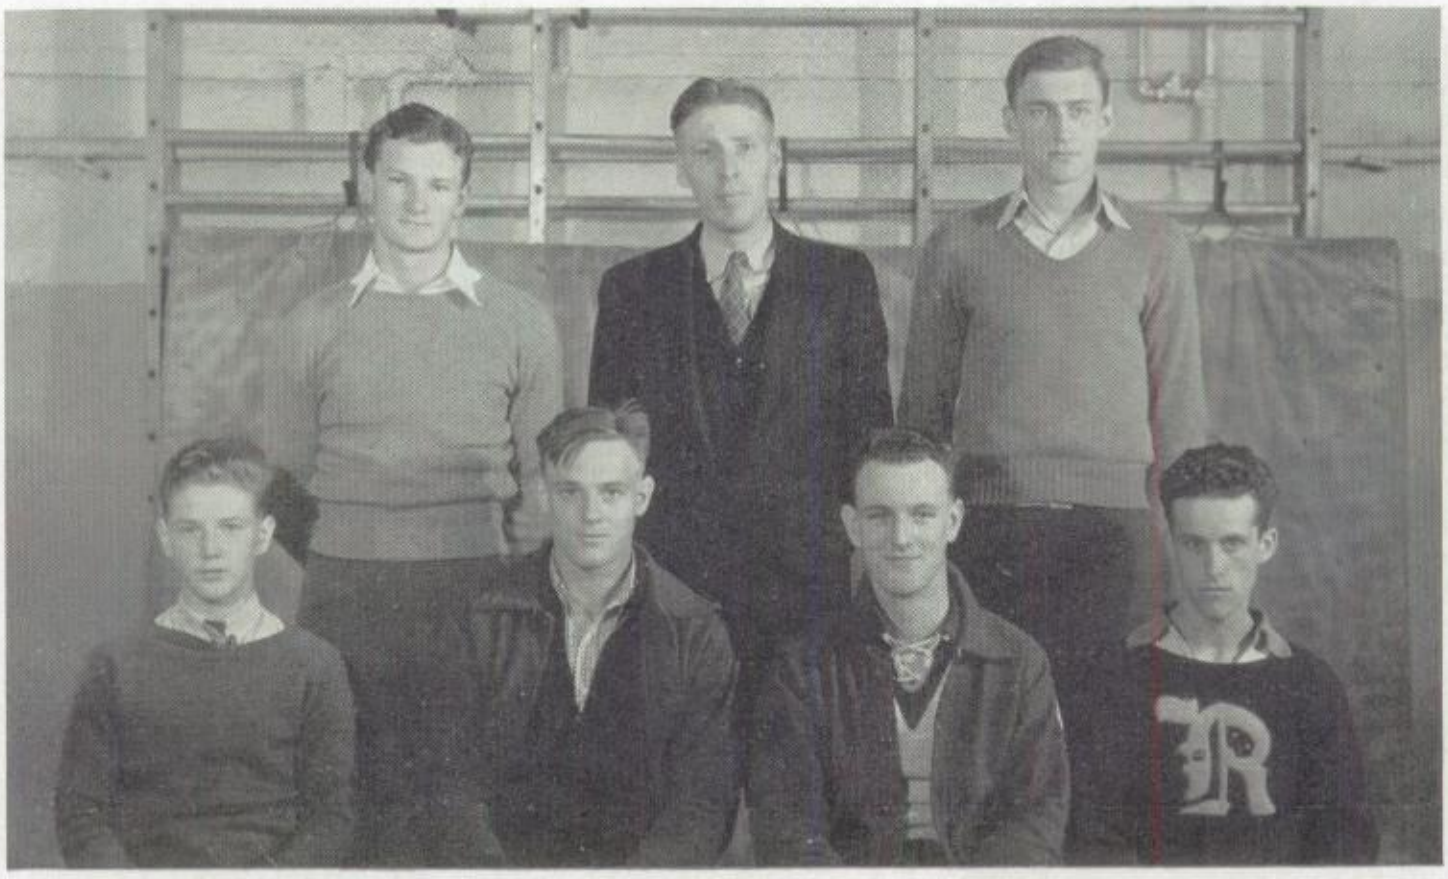
As the 1936 gridiron campaign drew to a rapid opening Coach Paul D. O'Connor was confronted with the difficult task of building a team. With last years graduation went many of the stars of former years, as a result he was confronted with a man-sized job of developing an entirely new team from material which was inexperienced with the tactics of high school football.

After a few weeks of concentrated efforts, Ramsey went into the fray. As the year progressed it became apparent that Ramsey would not find itself on the top of the heap at the end of the season. However, the Ramsey team succeeded in administering decisive defeats to Hawthorne and Butler. In spite of its defeats during the 1936 season the team showed a spirit that will surely develop into material success on the gridiron next year.

The second team was also a hard workin goutfit which gave real support to the varsity in its many hard fought battles with the result that we look forward to great things from them in the future.

The members of the squad to receive awards were Co-captains Murphy and Lockwood, Baumgartner, Flaker, Wells, Sneider, P. Melville, Clifford, Sima, Martin, McCarroll, McCormack, Lehockey, Clerici, Young, Hutton, Remo, D'Aiuto, and W. Melville.

Good Luck
"Slowey"



Basketball

Coach ..... Charles Schanz

Captain ..... Andrew Remo

Manager ..... Walter Albers

The 1936-37 basketball season proved to be very successful. The squad that answered the first call to practice was quite large and overwhelming with ambition and eagerness to burn up the court. Among these members that turned out, there were only two varsity players, from the preceding year's second team. Coach Schanz found three cagers. The remainder of the squad was practically all inexperienced as far as being under definite fire was concerned. It was shortly after this however, that the boys pulled themselves out of their rut, broke the jinx that was towering over them and won many hard fought victories. The team finished its playing season by defeating the Alumni in a very uninteresting and one sided contest. The record showed eleven victories to five losses.

The Second Team with a very small but brilliant club battled their way to a fine record. After a very delightful banquet held at the Ferncroft Inn, the season was officially closed, and Russell Bogardus was elected Captain for 1937-38 season. Varsity awards were: Captain-elect Remo, Clifford, Hartwell, Pelzer, Murray and Bogardus.

The Second Team members to receive awards were: Curran, Wells, D'Auito, Salling, Oddo, Runk and Wadsworth.

Girl's Basketball

Coach ..... Dorothy Grosselfinger

Captain ..... Viola Rossner

Manager ..... Virginia Sleight

The 1936-37 girl's basketball team proved very successful under the skillful coachng of Miss Grosselfinger. With only one returning veteran, the girls worked diligently throughout the entire season, being defeated only twice. After the annual schedule was completed the inter-class games were played, and the seniors were victorious.

High scorer for the season was Captain Viola Rossner with 120 points, and Ruth Lang was a close second with 95 points.

The girls receiving first team letters were as follows: Viola Rossner, Ruth Lang, forwards; Edna Wojciechowski, Margaret Stromberg, guards; Ruth Klascha, Katherine Marr, Kathleen Toomey, centers.

Members of the second team consisted of the following: Rosemary Sullivan, Lee Kudrick, forwards; Gay Ross, Bertha Meder, guards; Madelon Rufner, Jean Wales, centers.

Games were played with Spring Valley, Suffern, Hasbrouck Heights, and Dumont.

Baseball

Manager ..... Lorin Hay
Coach ..... Charles Schanz

The Baseball season was officially opened on April 12, when the team and Coach Schanz traveled to Spring Valley. The contest ended in an overwhelming victory for the visiting team.

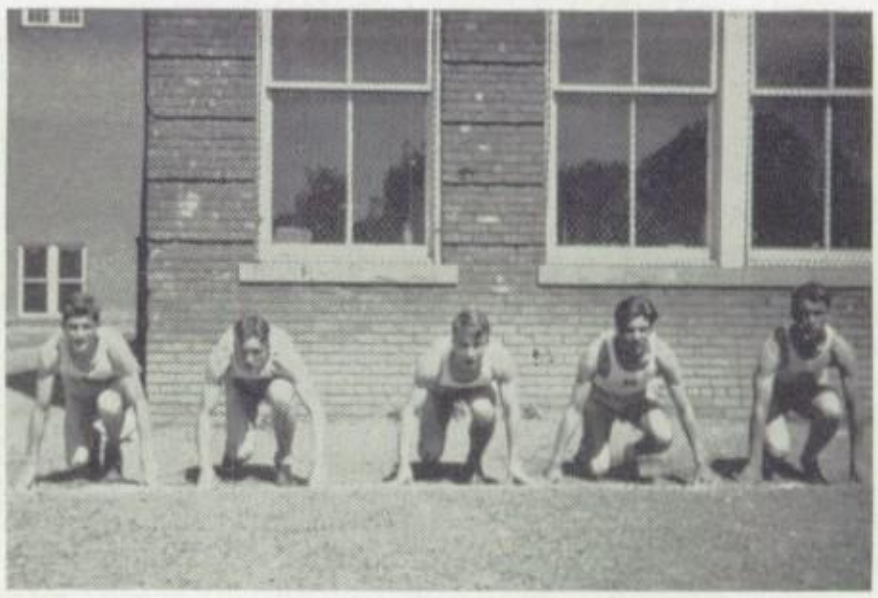
The following week the Ramsey Club played host to a weak Dumont nine. After the dust had cleared, and the cheers died away to echoes the Ramsey boys were again to be found on the long end of the tally, this time the score counted 18-4.

Judging by the two fine exhibitions displayed in these games, Ramsey should certainly have an excellent season.

The team consists of Charles Hendricks, Graydon Young and Bucky Hutton, three capable hurlers. Russell Bogardus first base, Paul Melville second base, Larry Curran shortstop, Jack Clifford third base, and Joe Baumgartner catcher. In the outfield we find Ed Halik left field, Bill Melville centerfield, and Vince Sneider right field.

The players in reserve are Bob Samuels, Tony Janosko, Ed McCarroll and Jim Hennion.

"Bud" McCormack



Track

Coach ..... Paul D. O'Connor

Manager ..... Joe Reich

After the opening of the 1937 Track training season, there proved to be very few veterans of the cinder path back from the 1936 team.

Coach O'Connor with his many years of Track coaching experience and expert ability will undoubtedly have little difficulty in producing a winning team.

The Inter-Class Meet will soon be run off to determine the more capable runners. After this problem has been solved, the team will proceed with its dual meets.

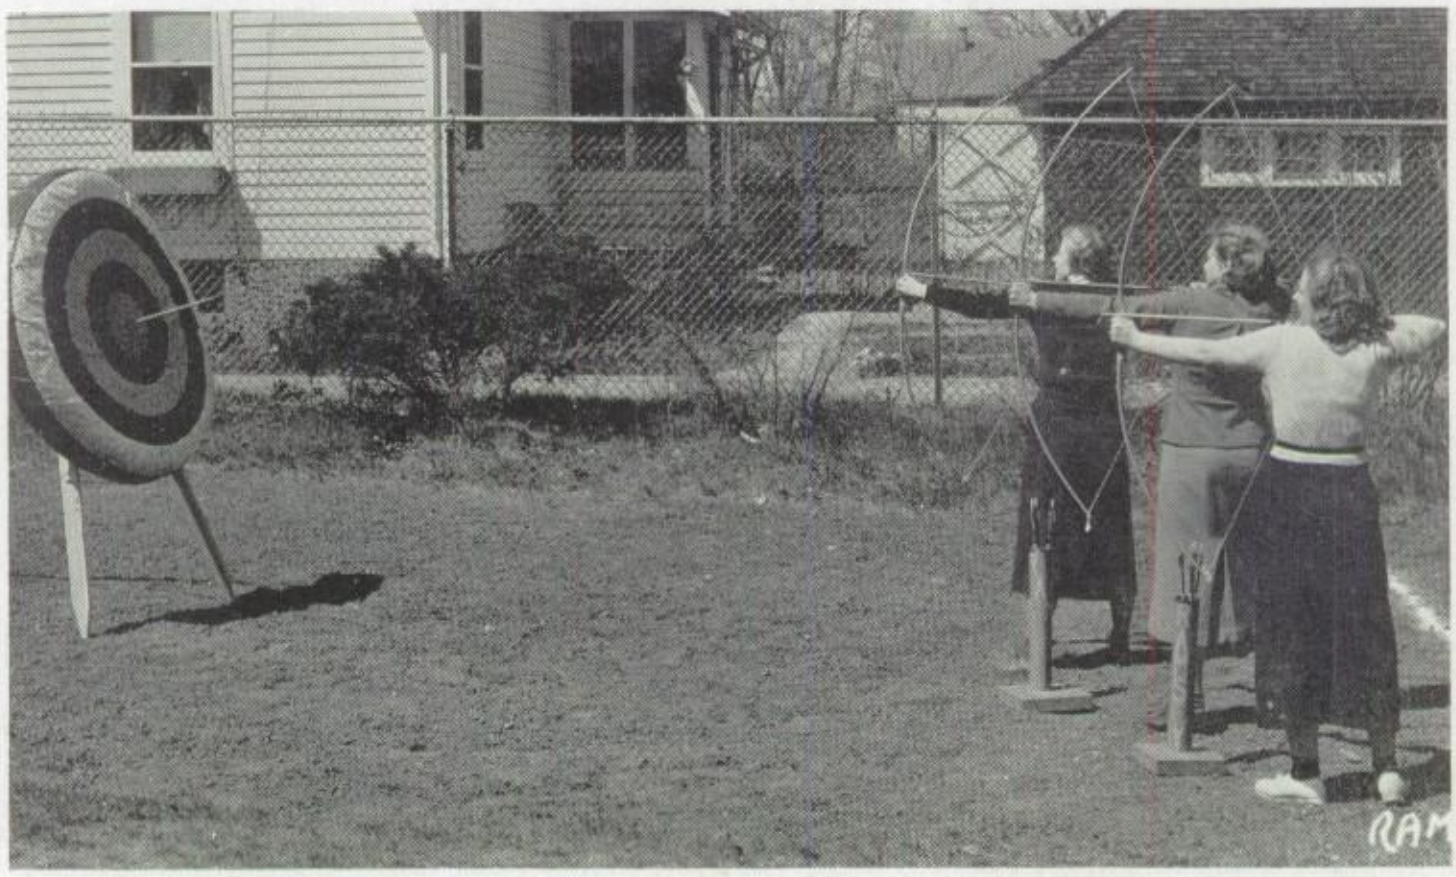
Veterans from last season's team are: Bucky Hutton, an important member in the dash events, Dave Redlund, an excellent miler who walked off with second honors in the state meet last spring, and Bob Young, an up and coming member of the field event contestants.

The new members on the 1937 Track Team are:

Dashes—Russell Pfitzner and Bud McCormack.

Middle Distances—Bud McCormack, Edgar DeYoe, Stanley Fisher and Harold Ruhl.

Field Events—Ed Burger, Anthony DeMartini, Harold Ruhl, Andy Remo and Bob Wells.



Archery

Coach ..... Edith Clifford

Captains .....(Senior) Virginia Sleight, (Junior) Grace Ross

Treasurer ..... Norma Jones

The Archery Club consists of senior and junior girls and is under the capable supervision of Mrs. Clifford. The girls practice both in the fall and the spring of the year.

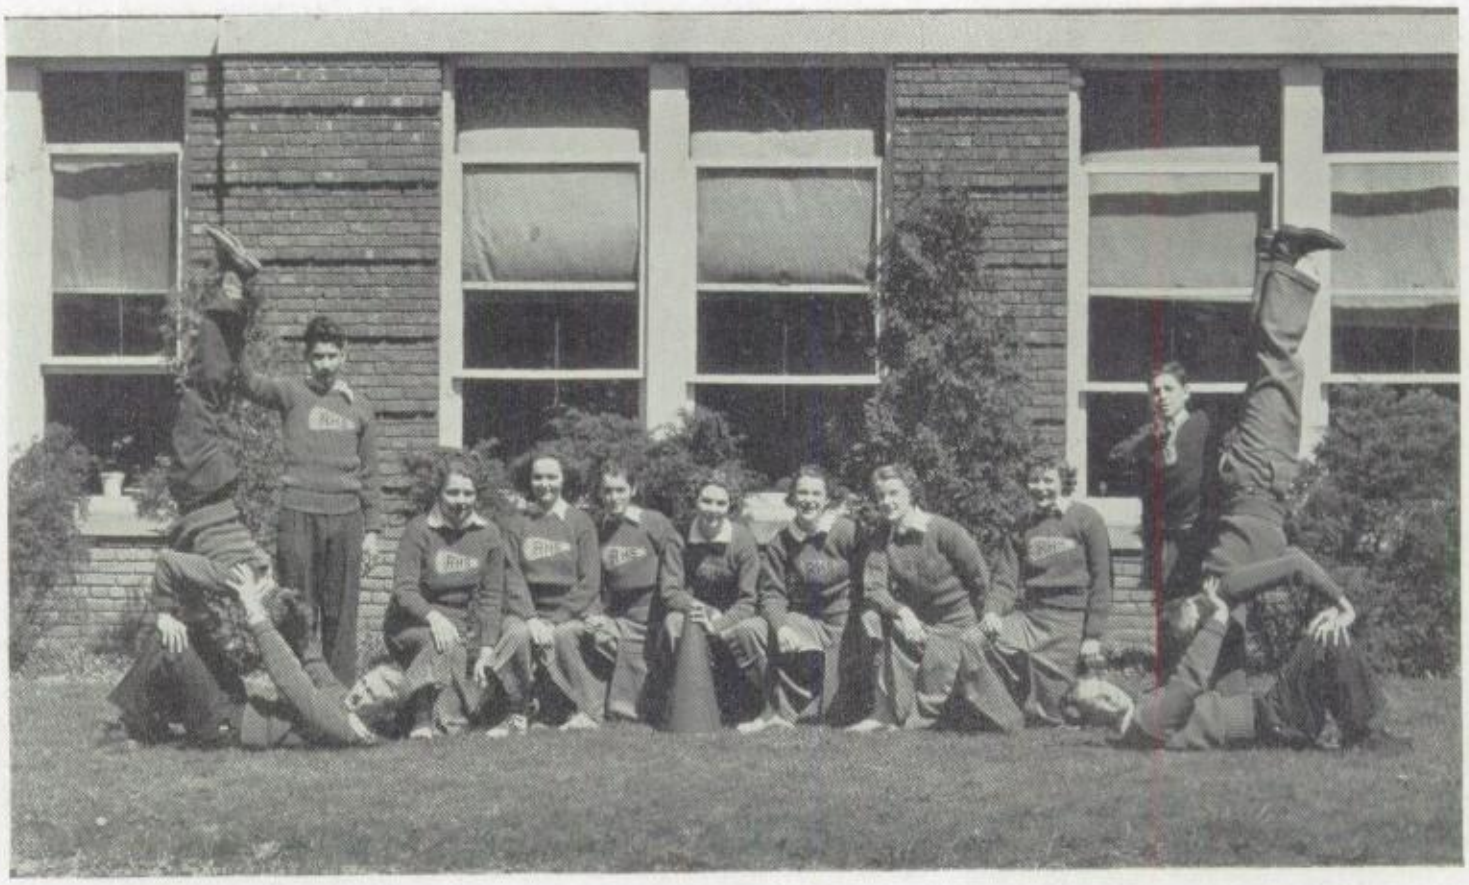
Inter-class tournaments are held at the end of each season. Last fall Virginia Sleight, Ruth Klascha and Doris Antoine were the victors.

We have some very promising archers and hope that they will prove successful in the annual state tournament given in the spring.

HORSESHOE TEAM

TUMBLING CLUB

WINTER SPORTS CLUB



Cheerleaders

The cheerleaders opened the year by presenting "pep meetings" in order to arouse school spirit. After the purchase of new outfits, the squad attended football and basketball games during the respective seasons. Katherine Marr was eelcted head cheerleader. The members of the team are:

Maude Coles
Katherine Foote
Margaret Guy
Viola Rossner
Kathleen Toomey

Activities

The Chemistry Club made trips to industrial plants and to the Planetarium. Demonstrations and reports that were not given in class were made possible during the club meetings.

THE BAND

THE ORCHESTRA

Orchestra and Band

Mr. Di Nardo has greatly improved the Ramsey High School Orchestra. They have tackled many difficult pieces and have shown their talent and ability in the musical world.

The band also reveals the efforts of Mr. Di Nardo. They contributed to the success of the "Spring Festival" together with the orchestra and Glee Clubs.

An effort has been made to uniform the band and the fund is gradually growing.

Glee Clubs

The combined Glee Clubs under the direction of Miss Marjorie B. Brundage has had a most successful year. They presented a program of Christmas music and an assembly of assorted music. Later in the year they held their annual "Spring Festival." Miss Brundage deserves a great deal of credit for her excellent work with the clubs.

"THE WILD CALIFORNIA LILY"

What could this be, growing
In the cathedral nave of lofty redwoods,
Its delicate, long stem, so straight and slender, reaching
Up, up to the magnificent glory of its blossoms,
A shower of snow-white waxen bells,
Ethereally frail, strangely quieting,
In their awe-inspiring solitude, among
The setting of great moss-covered trunks of Fallen trees; the tiny bubbling ripple of the spring;
The gray flash of the tree squirrels,
No room for contempt and evil here among this;
Clean and fresh and beautiful; something to respect, like a
Church, in its atmosphere of holy calm?

ON THE IMMORTAL LOVERS ROMEO AND JULIET

You have lived a beautiful love,
So sincere and real
That it made the moon and stars to shine
Far brighter with its simple tenderness;
And they fell to earth,
A light in the darkened path you chose to follow;
Kissing each golden-dripped lily,
And bending them low
Beside the early summer rose,
Which is like a pink phantom
Dusty in the warm night air.
Here beneath your balcony,
You pledged true love with bonds
That life itself could not sever;
While all the garden looked on enraptured.
And the silent cypress grieved for you,
Because it knew your fate and
You were oh so happy,
As you walked along the path
Leading past the lonely fountain,
Casting sweet words to each lovely flower by the way;
And they in turn strewed their pale petals
Before your steps,
Forming like some enchanting carpet
Upon which you two walked and left your burning kisses
Sealed with their perfume.
And even now the essence of it lingers,
A memory in a garden of love.

AMERICAN YOUTH

By Margaret Lemmerman

At the age of five, the average American child pushes his canoe into the waters of education and begins his first great adventure, Public School. His life is sometimes like a frail canoe, tested by swirling torrents, rapids and swiftly gliding water. If his character is carefully molded, he will shoot the rapids valiantly.

An American doesn't go to school to devote all of his time to studies. He believes there is a time and place for all things, studying included. He not only cultivates strong and lasting companionships but also develops his initiative to a high degree. In other words, he is made to think and do things for himself.

Every good American finds sports enjoyable but sometimes detailed and tricky. As he travels along to good sportsmanship, he must be alert and have sharp eyes to detect snags and hidden rocks that might mar his character. If he plays a fair and square game he will cultivate an unblemished character.

Everyone enjoys pleasure and where you find pleasure, you find American youth. It is regfreshing to drift through the calm waters of diversion for a while but if we did it continually it would become monotonous and we should not enjoy it.

Onward struggles our American youth through the swirling torrents, rapids, and swiftly gliding waters, on to manhood and womanhood, shooting the rapids victoriously and moving on to the smoother depths beyond.

Honorable Mention

"LIFE"

Life. What is it?
Warm, fluttering,
Poignant and sad,
Laughter and tears.

In succession
Emotional,
Calm and austere,
Throbbing and gay.

One day laughter
The next day grief,
Surprising all
When life's end comes.

The beauty gone,
The world waits not,
Nor misses us.
We are soon forgot.

ELEANOR WINTER.

"IN THE EYES OF MAN"

Remember him? He used to live
In the house beside the road.
He used to keep the adage old,
By being a friend to man.

He opened wide his garden gate,
He smilingly welcomed all,
He said come here and stay within,
And gaze upon the flowers.

They smiled at him, both young and old
And tarried in his garden.
They ate the fruit and plucked the rose,
Which grew in sunny fragrance.

Then one day, his money gone,
Against him all did murmur.
They grew old; and he grew older still.
His garden went to ruin.

And none there were to come and stay
None picked the fruit and roses.
In time of need he was alone.
And no man else dwelt with him.

While he was rich, they willing were
To smile and bow before him.
But now he's poor and all alone
The eyes of man abhor him.

THE BLIND DATE

"Peter, hurry up it's eight o'clock," yelled my sister, "I thought you were to be at Jack's house by ten. Don't forget to bring this corsage. Holy smoke, you're not going to wear a yellow tie with that suit? There you go again standing pin toed. Walk with the toes out like this."

Crash, bang! There lay my sister on the rug which had slipped half way under my bed. Her one hand in a shoe and her other hand in my dirty socks. Of course I rushed to aid the dear.

"Come on kid," I said, "I'm desperate! This is only the twentietth tie I've had on and then you spoil it. If that little dame doesn't like it then she can go lump it."

At eight thirty I ran out to the car, turned on the ignition, stepped on the starter, and within the next second I had knocked over the ash can in which lay a chicken. Boy, talk about feathers flying and hens cackling. Could I help it if I had put the car in reverse in all my nervousness. What was that noise? Fooled again because it was only my teeth chattering.

On arriving at Jack's house all keyed up to see the girl, I tripped over a bush and got a lovely grass stain on my pants. My handkerchief slightly dampened took most of it off. By the time I reached the door, I was fairly presentable. There I stood with a corsage in one hand, my other hand occupied with the bell, while my tongue froze to my palate.

Harken! Someone was coming to the door. It opened slowly and there to my surprise stood Stena my cousin, the girl of the hour. Here's a secret folks, but I'm telling you it was fortunate I owned a good pair of suspenders for my jaw dropped so heavy it would surely have taken them along.

THE BURGLAR

Sneaking with an air imposing, deep into each shadow closing,
Darkness with him always blending—he an evil deed intending.
Like a serpent softly gliding, never with the law abiding,
Aliways in the dark night lurking—like an owl the daylight smirking.

Searching thru the twilight dark'ning, to the shrill night noises hark'ning.
Creeping toward a dark house loomin', with each pulse beat fairly boomin'
Faintly came the night wind cooling, at the rustling trees came pulling.
. . . Nearer to his destination . . . stealing was his occupation.

Came he to a spacious dwelling. Round him brewed a tempest swelling,
Banging shutters fanning, swinging, swooping round the wild winds bringing Slashing rain aiming striking. The storm was to the burglar's liking,
Cautiously with agile footing he climbed the porch to start his looting.

A swinging shutter, swish of lace, the blind and curtain hit his face.
Surprised by the sudden force of gale, he fell over the high porch rail.
Greeted ther by a canine guard. The porch was high, the ground was hard.
Rushing thru the rough woods brushing. Behind a dog was madly rushing
Scraping boughs and twisting vines, a great dog barks, a chased man whines.

DAN BROCKHUIZEN.

"BEAUTY"

O, breathless Beauty deepest passions' child.
Thy life nurtured in the calm afterglow
Of sunsets, dashing waves, and bright sunlight.
Come thou. Enter at last thy fondest dream.
Leave childhood's bright experience behind.
Away from day's juvenile passions go.
Let passion reach her dark cloaked self to thee.
Go with mistic night and be enchantment.
O find youthful, sweetest life with her.
Be thou in quiet nights and starlit skies,
In moonlight's glow and fountain's bubbling sound.
O breath. Charm simple night to thine own way.
Childhood pleasures left behind thee, Beauty
Mature among the quiet paths of night.

Idiotic Pentameter

7 On a bright and sunny day
7 I love to wile the hours away
8 By lying near a babbling brook
8 In some secluded shady nook,
7 While the birdies in the tree
7 Sing so very sweet to me.
8 As the brook goes bubble, bubble
8 This bally English causes trouble.
8 I love to hear the bob-o-link
8 As I sit here and try to think.
5 Love is everywhere
5 Its music fills the air.
8 As I sit and smell a lily
8 I think this poem sounds kind of silly,
8 And over on the other hill
8 I hear a lovely whip-poor-will.
7 On a boulder in the brook
7 I sit fishin' with no hook.
8 The fish won't bite: It isn't funny,
8 Because the fish hooks cost me money.
9 I stop my fishing and start to eat,
9 While a little eel swims around my feet.
8 I hear the buzz of the beezes
8 As they buzz throughout the treezes,
8 And the warm and balmy breezes
8 Give me cases of the sneezes.
9 Over there is a doity rabbit
9 I think he needs a can of Babbitt.
8 And there a snake lies in the grass,
8 All set to frighten some poor lass
8 And on the ground I see some ants.
8 I hope they don't crawl in my lunch.
9 I watch the course of a bumble bee.
9 Says I to me, 'I'll let the bee be."
8 Now I am in a pensive mood,
8 But this mood, she is not so goood.
10 I'd better not give this to dear Miss Miller
10 'Cause if I do it'll surely kill'er
11 So now I rock in the arms of Morpheus
11 And the time has come for me to say thus,
Quote—"May Allah bless each and every one of you until the sands of the desert grow cold."—Unqote.

April 15, 1937—In chemistry laboratory. Gravely eyeing Harold, Walter Krysmowski said, "Schultz is a gaseous product." Thus spoke the oracle.

April 19, 1937—A general holiday! Pictures for yearbook are taken. We meet Frankenstien.

April 20, 1937—Holiday continues. By 3:00 P. M. Milly and the photography committee were forcibly restrained from tearing out their hair.

April 21, 1937—First baseball game. We beat Dumont by a wide margin. Says Mr. Schanz, "We made out all right."

April 22, 1937—Muriel Roughsedge and Dot B. leave for a weekend at N. J. C. as representatives of R. H. S. They took with them an extra bag of addresses to be handed out to those "Rutger's men."

April 23, 1937—The Juniors are beginning to stalk through the halls with preoccupied expressions and favor their teachers with blank stares. Novelty Nite is just around the corner and we sympathize.

April 26, 1937—Well, back on daylight saving. Think of the lost hour and of the time table complications.

April 29, 1937—Have you noticed the riding club formed this year? And the natty riding outfit that "Murph" is sporting? "Oh! for a horse," sighs a sentimental soph.

April 30, 1937—A candid cameraman stalks the Seniors, and manages to snap them in ludicrous positions.

May 3, 1937—Ah, the Month of May! New Romances blossom along with the bag lunches that adorn the streets of our fair city.

May 6, 1937—The Juniors are in a state of suspended animation. Says Howie, "What Next!"

May 7 and 8, 1937—Congratulations to the Juniors on a grand show. It nearly equalled Novelty Nite of '36.

May 10, 1937—The Nugget goes to press! The staff relaxes and its members wipe their fevered brows. Schultz faints and "Langa" comes to his rescue.

May 11, 1937—The annual battle begins. Shall we have a white or pastel graduation? We decide on white! (Of course).

May 13, 1937—Standing room only in Nurse's room! The number of cases in the Spring Fever epidemic swells to a terrifying total.

May 26, 1937—Track season is at its peak. "Why," asks the editor, "Can't they have a track meet without that gun going off?"

May 28, 1937—As usual the Juniors excel. This time it's their Junior Prom.

June 1, 1937—Hasn't this year passed quickly? Worried and relieved expressions appear alternately on the Seniors' faces.

June 7, 1937—Exam week looms ominously!

June 8-11, 1937—It's a crime to have to take exams in such weather! And such exams!

June 14, 1937—The beginning of the end. We feel tragically happy.

June 11, 1937—Class Nite.

June 16, 1937—The Seniors develop writer's cramp. It certainly is a boast to our superiority complexes to have the underclassmen beseeching us for signatures.

June 17, 1937—Graduation! Proud parents, relieved teachers, amazed seniors. "When we march down the aisle, please keep in step!"

June 18, 1937—Last assembly. Goodbye R. H. S., we're off for our class picnic.

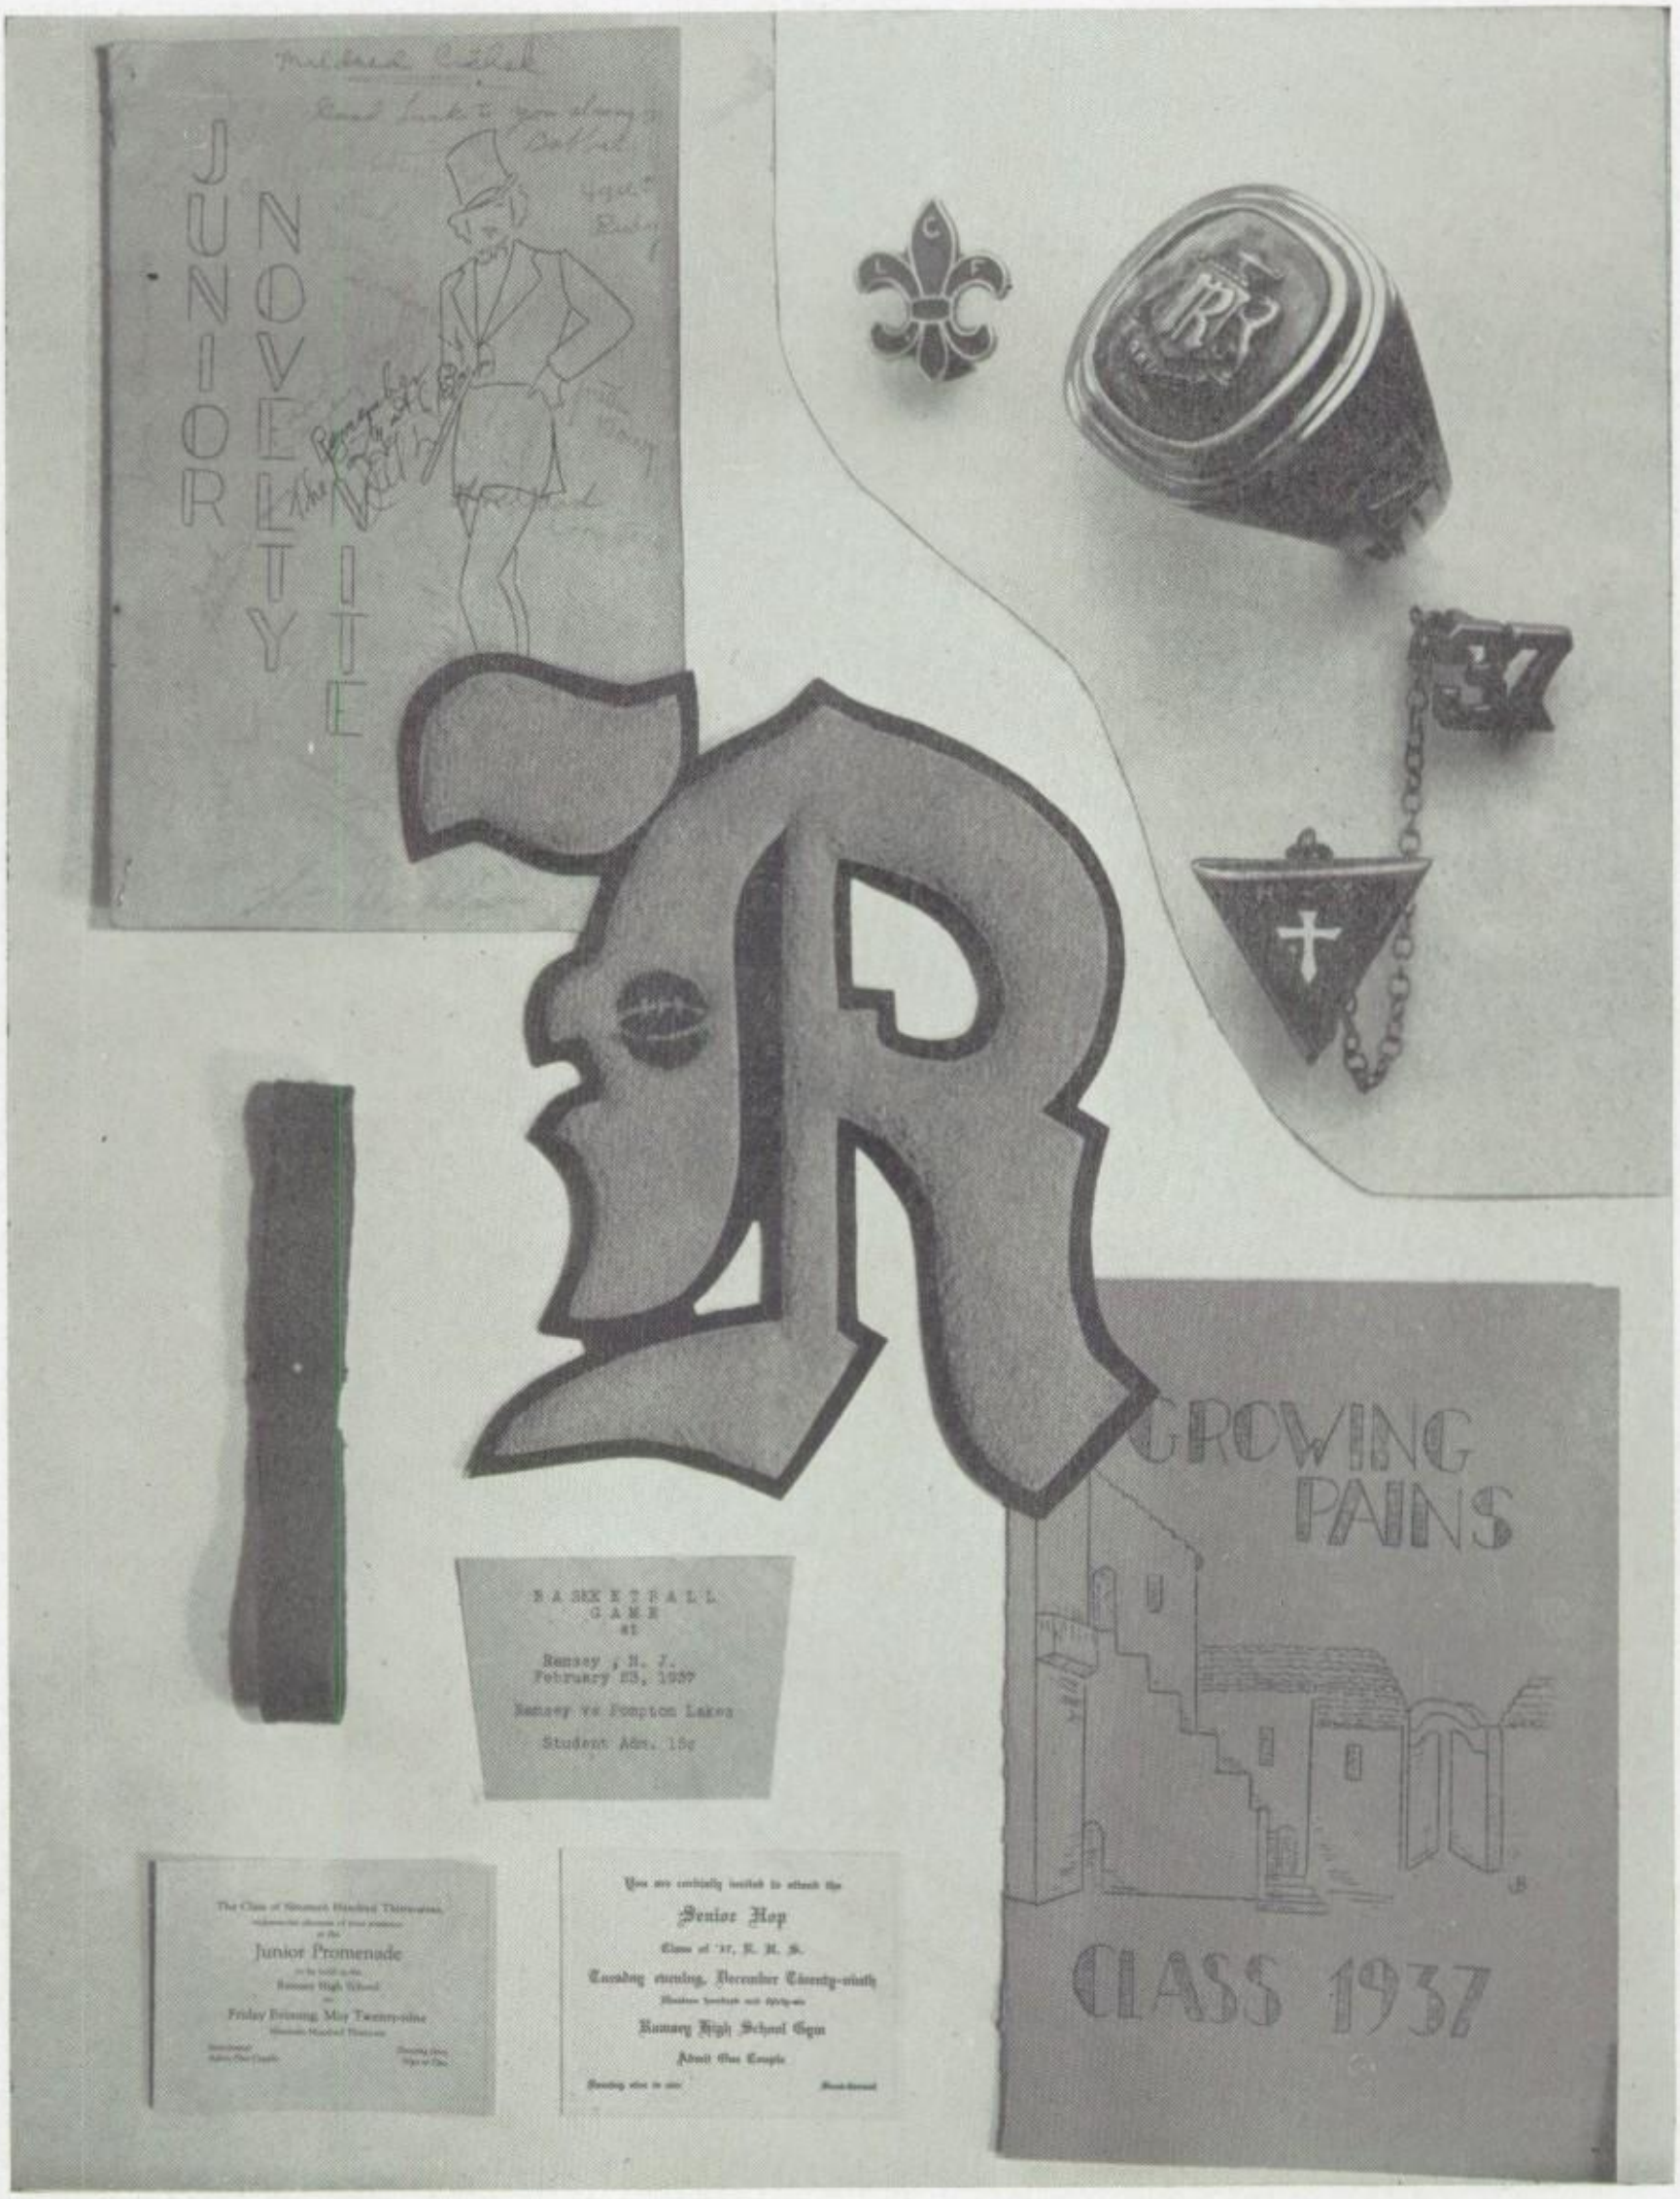
AMONG OUR SOUVENIRS



In Appreciation

We, the class of nineteen hundred and thirty-seven wish to express our sincere appreciation and gratitude to the following teachers for their unexcelled assistance in forwarding our school projects: To Miss J. Sullivan and Miss Edith Cunningham for aiding us in our Sophomore Assembly, to Miss Preische for her boundless patience and energy during Noverty Nite, to Mrs. Smith for helping us select our class rings and to Miss Mallin for her aid in making our Junior Promenade a success. In our Senior year we wish to extend our thanks to Miss Mangan and Mr. Smith our Senior advisors, and to Miss Miller for her excellent directing of the Senior Play.
